PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JAMES E. EARHEART, JR., U.S.MC, for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity as member of a United States Navy anti-sabotage party aboard U.S.S. HARTLAND during entry into the port of Oran, Algeria, on November 8, 1942. After crashing boom defenses and facing heavy gunfire from hostile shore emplacements and anchored warships, the HARTLAND secured a throw line to a harbor tug to provide escape for wounded personnel and non-swimmers during abandonment of the damaged vessel. When the tug began to move and the lives of men on the line were jeopardized by an imminent break, Private First Class Earheart, with utter disregard for his own personal safety, volunteered to swim out and halt the boat. Unhesitatingly leaving the ship while it was still under vigorous shelling, he exposed himself to a riddling blast of machine-gun fire and was instantly killed. His heroic conduct was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity as a Platoon Leader of Company B, Fifth Tank Battalion, Fifth Marine Division, in action against enemy Japanese forces on Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, 21 February 1945. Voluntarily braving heavy enemy fire of all types, First Lieutenant Earl made a personal reconnaissance of an area to be assaulted by tanks and infantry and, after coordinating the attack, led the assault in his tank until the vehicle was struck by a high explosive shell which painfully wounded him. Steadfastly refusing evacuation at a time when his unit and surrounding infantry were receiving heavy fire from their front, he courageously led his platoon across an area known to be mined to reduce the source of this fire and then led an attack on the gun positions which covered his route of approach and succeeded in destroying the enemy fortifications. Still bleeding and in pain, First Lieutenant Earl persisted in the attack until success was secured and then directed the withdrawal of his platoon before accepting medical attention. His determined fighting spirit and leadership were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Responsible for the supervision and training of the Second Marine Division, Brigadier General Edson brought the regiments of his fighting organization to a high state of combat readiness in preparation for the Marianas Campaign. Landing at Saipan in the early afternoon of 15 June, he moved his men in under heavy enemy artillery and mortar fire, established communications with elements ashore and vigilantly maintained direct contact until the establishment of the Division Command Post ashore. Cool and courageous, he repeatedly risked his life to visit the front line units, rallying his men and providing expert tactical advice during critical stages of the battle as the Second Division forces pushed relentlessly against fanatic Japanese resistance to render valiant service during the assault and aid in the ultimate capture of Saipan on 9 July. Participating in the invasion of Tinian on 24 July, Brigadier General Edson again demonstrated outstanding qualities of leadership, military acumen and personal valor during the aggressive, sustained drive which resulted in the seizure of this second fiercely defended enemy base in the strategically important Marianas Group on 1 August 1944. Stouthearted and indomitable, Brigadier General Edson contributed substantially to the success of our offensive operations in the Pacific Theater and, his brilliant combat skill, unflinching judgment and iron determination in the face of tremendous opposition reflect the highest credit upon himself and the United States Naval Service."

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while serving with the Third Battalion, Twenty-second Marines (Reinforced), First Provisional Marine Brigade, Third Amphibious Corps, during action against enemy Japanese forces on Guam, Marianas Islands, 28 July 1944. With his platoon subjected to rifle and machine-gun fire, Private First Class Elam placed himself in an exposed position in front of an enemy dugout and, opening fire with his automatic rifle, neutralized the machine gun in the dugout. Severely wounded in the leg and ordered to safety by his Platoon Leader, he held his position and refused to withdraw until all other wounded had been evacuated under his covering fire. His initiative and devotion to duty reflect the highest credit upon Private First Class Elam and the United States Naval Service."

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while serving with Weapons Company, Twenty-seventh Marines, Fifth Marine Division, in action against enemy Japanese forces on Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, 9 March 1945. Courageous and aggressive in the face of terrific fire from Japanese guns, Private First Class Emanuel rendered valiant service during operations on this strategically important island, repeatedly volunteering for front line duty at night and for work as a litter bearer during the day, in addition to his regular duties as a machine gunner. On 9 March, when a withering burst of hostile machine-gun and mortar fire severely wounded his fellow litter bearer while attempting to remove a casualty, Private First Class Emanuel fearlessly rushed forward despite the enemy's savage barrage and successfully evacuated both of the wounded men to safety. Later the same day, while participating in a bitter engagement with the fanatical Japanese, he was mortally wounded by hostile fire. By his daring initiative, indomitable fighting spirit and great personal valor in voluntarily risking his life for others, Private First Class Emanuel saved the lives of two of his comrades who otherwise might have perished. CORPORAL VAHAN ERANOSIAN,
UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS RESERVE,

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while serving as a Wire Team Chief of Company D, First Battalion, Second Marines, Second Marine Division, during action against enemy Japanese forces on Tarawa, Gilbert Islands, on 21 November 1943. When our assaulting units gained the center of the airstrip during the early morning following furious battle with a fanatic enemy on D-Day, Corporal Eranosian boldly led his wire team across the fire-swept area and expeditiously established and maintained the only wire communication from the Forward Assault Companies to the Battalion Command Post and the 81-mm. Mortar Platoon, tirelessly carrying on despite tremendous odds during our sustained drive across the landing field to the south coastline of the island. By his daring initiative, his dauntless perseverance and cool courage in the face of grave danger, Corporal Eranosian enabled the forward elements to direct accurate, determined fire of the mortar platoon against the Japanese and contributed materially to the success of our operations against this vital hostile stronghold. His unwavering devotion to duty throughout the fierce hostilities was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity as a Platoon Leader attached to a Reconnaissance Company of the Headquarters Battalion, Twenty-eighth Marines, Fifth Marine Division, during action on enemy Japanese-held Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, 14 March 1945. After crossing a fire lane covered by heavy sniper and machine-gun fire as he was leading his platoon forward to fill a gap between two assault battalions, Second Lieutenant Erickson halted to encourage the members of his unit in their attempt to negotiate the hazardous crossing. When his runner was wounded by a burst of enemy fire as he started across the opening and fell to the ground in the open fire lane, Second Lieutenant Erickson immediately braved the withering machine-gun fire, and ran to his runner's side, took him in his arms and started to carry him to a covered position where he could administer first aid. Mortally wounded by another burst of enemy fire as he moved across the opening with the wounded man, he fought to remain conscious until he had successfully carried his runner to safety before he himself collapsed and died as a result of his wounds. Second Lieutenant Erickson's gallant act of self-sacrifice inspired his men to heroic efforts in the successful accomplishment of their mission and was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service. NO 516

AWARD (POSTHUMOUS) OF THE SILVER STAR:

By direction of the President, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved 9 July 1918 (Bull. 43, WD, 1318), a Silver Star is posthumously awarded by the Commanding General, United States Army Forces in the South Pacific Area, to

GUNNERY SERGEANT HARRY P. ERICKSON, USMC.,

"For gallantry in action at New Georgia, Solomon Islands, on 9 July 1943. Personally manning a gun whose crew members had been pinned down by enemy fire Gunnery Sergeant Erickson aggressively maneuvered it into a position from which he disposed of an enemy machine gun and killed its entire crew. As a result of this courageous action he enabled friendly troops to continue their advance on the objective. In so doing Gunnery Sergeant Erickson sacrificed his life."

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while serving as Rifleman with the Second Battalion, Twenty-Fourth Marines, Fourth Marine Division, in action against enemy Japanese forces on Saipan Island, Marianas Islands, from 5 to 7 July 1944. Courageous and aggressive in the face of terrific Japanese opposition, Private Ericson repeatedly volunteered as scout for his platoon during cleaning-up operations on isolated points of enemy resistance behind the front lines. Although mortally wounded on 7 July while preceding the others into a thickly wooded area, he steadfastly refused medical aid and accurately pointed out the exact location of the enemy weapon to his platoon leader. By his outstanding initiative and resolute devotion to duty in the face of grave peril, Private Ericson contributed materially to the success of a vital mission. "For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity as a Member of the Engineers Platoon serving with the Third Battalion, Sixth Marines, Second Marine Division, in action against enemy Japanese forces on Tinian, Marianas Islands, 2 August 1944. Courageous and aggressive in the face of terrific fire from Japanese guns, Private First Class Erlick rendered valuable service during initial operations on this strategically important enemy stronghold. Stationed in a fox-hole several yards from the point of his battalion command post under attack on 2 August by approximately one hundred and fifty Japanese, he immediately delivered such a devastating volume of fire from his automatic rifle that many of the enemy were killed and others were delayed long enough to permit the establishment of an adequate defense line. Daring to leave the comparative safety of his fox-hole in the face of intense hostile machine-gun and rifle fire in order to obtain a better vantage point, Private First Class Erlick stood in an open roadway down which the enemy was advancing and continued to fire until he was mortally wounded. By his inspiring initiative and unwavering devotion to duty, he undoubtedly saved the lives of many of his comrades and contributed materially to the ultimate success of this vital campaign. His heroic fighting spirit was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service. He gallantly gave his life for his country."

II. AWARD OF THE SILVER STAR:

By direction of the President, under the provisions of Army Regulations 600-45, August 8, 1932, a Silver Star is awarded by the Commanding General, United States Army Forces in the South Pacific Area, to each of the following named officers and enlisted men:

DONALD L. EVANS, (403382), Private, United States Marine Corps Reserve, for gallantry in action on January 23, 1943, at Guadalcanal. While a member of an anti-sniper patrol along a road, Private Evans attempted, above and beyond his particular duties, to evacuate three wounded Marines and a wounded hospital corpsman from the road to a place of safety. While so doing he was under extremely accurate sniper fire and was severely wounded by a bullet through the chest. Home address: 1807 East 76th Street, Kansas City, Missouri.

While patrolling with his company, First Lieutenant Evans observed that another company of the battalion approximately seven hundred yards distant was receiving intense mortar and machine-gun fire and was unable to evacuate its numerous casualties without assistance. Obtaining permission to lead an evacuation party into the front lines, he quickly organized a thirteen-man group and removed many casualties in spite of the continued enemy fire, personally evacuating three wounded Marines and, in one instance, walking to the rear and carrying a Marine through machine-gun and sniper fire. Upon returning to the battalion command post, he bravely led a thirty-man evacuation party back to the scene of action and continued to direct evacuation activities until all the wounded had been removed to a place of safety. His heroic conduct, unfaltering devotion to duty and courageous spirit of self-sacrifice resulted in saving the lives of many of the wounded and reflect the highest credit upon First Lieutenant Evans and the United States Naval Service."

In preparation for a coordinated infantry-tank-artillery attack against high ground northeast of Motoyama Airfield Number Two, Major Evans thoroughly reconnoitered the entire Division zone of action under heavy hostile fire and, on the basis of that reconnaissance, submitted detailed recommendations for the employment of his Battalion. Undaunted by fierce enemy action, he courageously moved forward with his assault units in order to direct and control the progress of the advance. Sensing at the most critical phase of the attack the necessity of prompt and vigorous action to prevent the attack from stalling and to reorganize the remaining shattered forces, he moved on foot to the most forward tanks in the face of intense hostile fire and made an effective and timely reorganization of those tanks still on the field. By his outstanding courage and initiative, Major Evans inspired his officers and men to continue the advance despite the almost invulnerable defenses of the Japanese, and his unwavering devotion to duty was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

On one occasion, he boldly proceeded to the gun port of a hostile strong point and, despite the enemy's incessant shellfire, destroyed the entrenchment with well-placed demolitions and grenade fire, then entered the area and killed the remaining personnel. Again risking his life in a subsequent engagement, he fearlessly exposed himself to withering hostile fire to gain an advantageous position for covering the advance of a companion to the entrance of an enemy-held position. His daring initiative, great personal valor and tireless devotion to the completion of each perilous mission served as an inspiration to our troops and reflect the highest credit upon the United States Naval Service."

CORPORAL ROBERT EVERS,
UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS RESERVE,

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while serving with the First Battalion, Fourth Marines, Sixth Marine Division, during action against enemy Japanese forces on Okinawa, Ryukyu Islands, 8 June 1945. When his platoon became pinned down by intense enemy machine-gun fire from concealed positions, Corporal Evers and another Marine voluntarily moved out into the open to a vantage point from which the hostile emplacements were visible. Returning to his platoon leader and informing him of the location of the stronghold, he again volunteered to adjust tank fire upon the positions and, heroically exposing himself, directed devastating fire which destroyed the hostile forces. By his initiative, courage and unswerving devotion to duty, Corporal Evers contributed immeasurably to the successful advance of his platoon, thereby reflecting great credit upon himself and the United States Naval Service."

CAPTAIN WILLIAM C. EVERS,
UNITED STATES MARINE CORPS,

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity as Commanding Officer of Company I, Third Battalion, Ninth Marines, Third Marine Division, in action against Japanese forces on Iwo Jima, Volcano Islands, on 25 February 1945. When intense enemy automatic and mortar fire suddenly swept his company in an attack from the north edge of Motoyama Airfield Number Two, pinned down his left platoon and caused many casualties among vital personnel, Captain Evers personally advanced along his assault line from one unit to another, rallying his men as he directed their fire and movement. Inspiring his company to advance against tremendous opposition, he continued to risk his life under hostile fire until, while reconnoitering on the left, he was struck by enemy small-arms fire and killed instantly. A courageous leader, Captain Evers by his heroic example and skillful direction of his company's fierce onslaught had succeeded in inflicting severe casualties upon the enemy and in weakening the main line of Japanese resistance on Iwo Jima so that friendly troops subsequently took the vital ground with comparative ease. He gallantly gave his life in the service of his country."

The President of the United States takes pleasure in presenting the SILVER STAR MEDAL to

PRIVATE FIRST CLASS DONALD L. EWERS, USMCR.,

for service as set forth in the following

CITATION:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity while serving with the First Marine Raider Regiment as a machine gunner on the outpost line of resistance around Bougainville beachhead, Solomon Islands, December 9, 1943. While Private First Class Ewers and two other marines were operating a machine gun during a crucial period of the action, an enemy hand grenade exploded within the emplacement, killed his two comrades and demolished the gun tripod. In order to maintain uninterrupted resistance, Private First Class Ewers picked up the weapon and, although it was necessary to expose himself, kept up a vigorous stream of fire from his hip. Despite painful burns on both hands, he held out with grim determination until an adjacent platoon was able to reorganize its position effectively. His relentless fighting spirit, maintained at great personal risk in the face of grave danger, was in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."
