Face Mask Usage on Joint Base Myer Henderson Hall
As of September 17, 2021

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the entire National Capital Region is now a “SUBSTANTIAL” transmission area for COVID-19 and the highly contagious Delta variant and the region is seeing a re-escalation of COVID cases, face coverings are required in all indoor settings on Myer, McNair and Henderson Hall – regardless of vaccination status. The mask mandate remains in place for all non-vaccinated individuals – both indoors and outdoors. Please remain vigilant and follow CDC guidance regarding social distancing, washing hands and wearing cloth face coverings.

JBM-HH remains at Health Protection Condition Bravo. We continue to be focused on protecting the force, preserving readiness and mitigating the risk of transmission among personnel.

National Domestic Violence Prevention Month

MARADMIN 513/21: National Domestic Violence Prevention

2021 Theme: United to End Domestic Violence

Domestic Violence Prevention Month is nationally recognized every October. Throughout the month, events are held to raise awareness of domestic abuse, offer support to victims, and provide community education on available resources.

The Department of Defense’s 2021 theme is, “United to End Domestic Violence.” The campaign promotes a shared community responsibility in the prevention of domestic abuse. Everyone in the military community is instrumental in ending domestic abuse.

If you suspect someone is in an unhealthy or abusive relationship, offer support. Victims often feel isolated and responsible for the abuse. Listen, empathize, and express concern without judgment. Remind them the abuse is not their fault and they are not alone. Ask questions about how you can help and provide options for seeking supportive services.

If you feel unsafe at home or in your relationship, help is always available. You do not have to be in a crisis to access advocacy and clinical services. Two reporting options are available if you are experiencing domestic abuse. Unrestricted Reporting includes law enforcement and command involvement, while Restricted Reporting does not.

The Marine Corps Family Advocacy Program is committed to supporting Marines and their families impacted by domestic abuse through clinical, advocacy, and supportive services. Help is also available at the National Domestic Violence Hotline (800-799-7233) and Military OneSource at WWW.MILITARYONESOURCE.MIL.

To show support for the 2021 Domestic Violence Prevention Month, the Marine Corps community will participate in local installation events and activities. The Marine Corps, through participation in these events, will show that it defends and supports victims of domestic abuse. Leadership support of these events is instrumental in making it clear that domestic abuse is incompatible with military values, reduces mission readiness, and will not be tolerated in the Marine Corps.

Chaplains Corner: The Greatest Threat

“The Greatest Threat”

As many of you are aware, September is Suicide Awareness Month, a time to increase everyone’s understanding of the resources available to assist those struggling with thoughts and actions concerning suicide. It’s also an opportunity to look at current trends concerning suicide and study the findings regarding the details of recent suicidal behavior. During COVID lockdowns and attempted recovery, among young people, ages 15-24, it has been documented that suicide was the greatest threat. This is the demographic of those in our homes, those on our college campuses, those young Lance Corporals, Corporals, Sergeants and Staff Sergeants in every Marine unit. It only took 4 months into the pandemic for CDC Director Robert Redfield to warn that “there has been another cost that we’ve seen, particularly in high schools. We’re seeing, sadly, far greater suicides now than we are deaths from COVID. We’re seeing far greater deaths from drug overdose.” The problem persists, even though we are attempting a return to life as usual, for suicide levels are much too high among our teenagers and our young Marines. To understand this threat to our young we need to understand their values.

Young people age 15-24 rely on several factors to determine their sense of value: a purpose or cause, an identity, and a future they can believe in. Over the past two years, all of these were disturbed. Young people are losing confidence in those they typically trust for a future they could believe in. For some, the causes they espouse have turned out fraudulent, injudicious or plainly hypocritical. Their purpose seems to rely on their emotional compass and the state of their mood for that given day. They watch, powerless, as their parents’ marriages fall apart and their homes become places of strife due to the added stress of lockdowns, shutdowns, and the constant demands of all day (and all weekend in some instances) tele-working and Zoom hosted classrooms. How can we help this up-and-coming generation navigate the problems that have pushed them to turn to drugs, alcohol and suicide at an alarming rate?

If you have teenagers in your home, spend quality time with them. Nothing else you do influences them more. Knowing them will establish the currency you need to have difficult conversations, make difficult choices together, and help boost their sense of value. If you supervise or have near peer relationships with young Marines, get to know them, their family situations, and their intimate relationships. In times of war and combat – it was the leaders who knew their Marines and whose Marines knew them that inspired feats of bravery and faithful devotion to each other. That is what your young Marines signed up for – more than just the dragon slaying and America defending – it was to be part of a team, a family that would fight and die for each other, helping each other along through life’s challenges. The COVID shutdown and teleworking has made it all too easy for muster-by-text, once a week check-ins and minimal face time with your Marines. Be creative within the confines of the HPCON recommendations in order to continue the knowledge you have of each of your Marines and their specific challenges. An old, salty Master Chief once mentored me in this simple leadership nugget: “Take care of your wife and family – but don’t forget about those you lead. Your Sailors and Marines may be on the edge of disaster and if you don’t know them-you will never see the imminent danger.”

If you want to discuss this or anything else – your Chaplain is available for in person, over the phone, or virtual sessions! Call (703) 614-9280 or email: jonathan.maruszewski@usmc.mil
